

WORLD BOXING ASSOCIATION

BYLAWS

PREAMBLE

These Bylaws substitute the Constitution and Bylaws of the World Boxing Association, enacted in 1962, date on which the original name registered in 1920, as National Boxing Association (NBA) to World Boxing Association, (WBA) and that incorporates the amendments approved in October, 1991, in the Annual Convention celebrated in the city of Panama, Republic of Panama..

The mandate for this reform obeys the resolution approved in the Annual Convention held in Bali, Indonesia in September, 2003, where, by unanimous vote of the delegate present at this LXXXII Annual Meeting, it was resolved to authorize the President of the Association in order to, together with the Legislative Committee, proceed to construct one text that merge the Constitution and Bylaws, taking into consideration the different propositions of amendments that had been considered and discussed in last two years, both in the Directory Meetings and Annual Convention of the Association..

Very special emphasis was done when checking all those dispositions related to the quality of member, right to vote, requirements to aspire and to be member of the Directory of the Association, the presidency, and the duties, rights and obligations of the Members of the International Community that form to the World Boxing Association, by virtue of practical and operative requirements that demand adequacies to the current reality of the international environment of professional boxing.

In this sense, these Bylaws are bound to adequate and update the fundamental dispositions of the juridical system of the Association to a reality acknowledged by its constant political, social and economical changes within a business of a global competition that combines the seriousness and sports demands with the complex and difficult show business and to provide a healthy organized entertainment..

The changes incorporated in the reform that materializes and consolidates with the presentation of the Bylaws herein, have been checked and considered within high levels of demand, united to a high sense of responsibility and analytical work in order to guarantee the respect and protection of the principles and original values that encouraged the mission and fundamental purposes of this Association.

BYLAWS

Required the vote of the of the assistant members, due registered and qualified to enforce such right, in this Eightieth third Annual Convention held in Yalta, Ukraine, during 13, 14, 15 and 16 days of October, 2004; and having complied with the legal provisions that govern the matter, that are established in the Constitution and Bylaws that are in force, where all the modifications that were approved in the Seventieth-first Annual Convention held in Panama, Republic of Panama in October 1991 are contented; and according to a resolution issued in the Eightieth Second Annual Convention, held in Bali, Indonesia in September 2003, it was resolved to repeal the aforementioned Constitution and Bylaws, and it was decided to pass, consolidate and construct in one new and only text, the principles and fundamental norms of performance that from this date will be in forced, to be the base and apply for the fulfillment of the mission and purposes in the direction of the matters of the ASSOCIATION, which foundations and directives are faithfully contained in these Bylaws.
